Kuhlman Corporation played a major role in building Fifth Third Field, Toledo’s beautiful new stadium for minor-league baseball’s famous Mud Hens.

In fact, you could call Kuhlman the club’s designated concrete/masonry hitter to project architects HNTB and The Collaborative, construction manager The Lathrop Company, and contractors Rudolph/Libbe, A.A. Boos and G-A Masonry. Other Kuhlman customers on the project included Brooks Contracting, Great Lakes Concrete Restoration, E.S. Wagner and Louis Irving Masonry.

The striking square-block downtown structure includes more than 10,000 cubic yards of Kuhlman ready-mixed concrete and ready-mixed masonry grout, delivered in more than 1,000 truckloads over 12 months. Plus, the tunnels, bleachers and concrete walls throughout the facility were finished quickly and attractively with the pre-engineered German-made Paschal Logo concrete forming system provided by Kuhlman and Symons Corporation.

Kuhlman’s historical ties to the Mud Hens are shown by this billboard, prominently on display on the outfield wall of the old Swayne Field ballpark.

“Kuhlman provided the Mud Hens and Fifth Third Field with the highest caliber products, service and workmanship. We’re proud to have Kuhlman on our team.”

Joe Zunk, job superintendent for The Lathrop Company, the stadium’s general contractor, states, “Thank you, Kuhlman, for all your help with the Toledo Mud Hens’ new stadium.” Zunk adds that he truly appreciates the attention he receives from Kuhlman representatives through every aspect of a project. “Kuhlman is a company where the sales people won’t leave you after the sale.”

Kuhlman products, service and workmanship. We’re proud to have Kuhlman on our team.

Kuhlman Corp. teams up to build Fifth Third Field.

Over 1,000 truckloads of Kuhlman concrete went into the Mud Hens’ new stadium.

Kuhlman is pleased to have been selected as a significant supplier to this landmark project, says Company President Tim Goligoski. “We have been part of the fabric of downtown Toledo for 100 years and it’s very gratifying to start our second century with a project as noteworthy as the new Mud Hens Stadium. We can’t wait for opening day!”

Kuhlman provided the Mud Hens and Fifth Third Field with the highest caliber products, service and workmanship. We’re proud to have Kuhlman on our team.

— Joseph Napoli
Mud Hens’ General Manager

1845 Indian Wood Circle
Maumee, OH 43537
419-897-6000
419-897-6060 Concrete Dispatch

www.kuhlman-corp.com